Short Items of News Gathered on the Fly by the Chronicle's Reporters.

The board of directors of the penitentiary met yesterday and disposed of routine business.

The executive department yesterday appointed J. G. Martin, C. T Rawls and A. L. Carter, all of Asheville, notaries

A commission has been issued to J N. Gibbons, as Second Lieutenant, Company I, Second Regiment, vice Thos. N. Hancock, resigned.

The Governor yesterday offered a reward of $200 for the capture of Dempsey W. Miller, who is charged with murdering Jas. Luther in Randolph county.

The weather prophets are set back again. They promised the public that the back-bone of winter was broken, but it appears that their knowledge of the matter was rather broken.

Constable Jno. Upchurch has had the News and Observer to publish a card, in which he says the CHRONICLE has failed to do him justice in a matter with reference to "frivotous prosecutions." The CHONICLE had, before the appearance of the card, told the constable that its columns were open to him for any correction or denial he might wish to make, and he declined to make either.

DISAPPOINTED LOVE

Reported as the Cause of Two Suicides.

The Asheville citizen says: "It learned that David Worth Cowles' suicide at Oxford last week was caused by disappointment in love."

"It is also said that the suicide of Miss Julia Archibald, at Washington, N. C., was probably due to the same cause. The young lady had been at school in Raleigh. She lived in the family of Mr. Carmault, a prominent citizen of Washington."

The CHRONICLE prints the Citizen's item and is not disposed to question it; but a former resident of Washington, who now lives here, says that Miss Archibald was never at school in Ral-

THE INVESTIGATION COM-MITTEE.

The Meeting Yesterday -- Will Sit With Open Doors--Investigation of the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad Begun--And to be Continued To-day.

The State railroad and corporation investigating committee resumed sitting in the law department of the State library yesterday.

Representatives of the Raleigh & Gaston railroad company had been summoned to appear, and were present.

The company requested that the proposed investigation be postponed for a time, but the committee declined to grant the request.

The company then asked that the committee make the investigation with

This request was considered, and the committee decided that all its proceedings should be held with open doors, and that they should be open to the public.

A portion of the morning session was devoted to the consideration of various matters and plans in connection with the proposed work of the committee.
